NEW CLUB GETS COLUMBIA LINKS

The recently organized Washington and Suburban Club, with a list of 102 charter members, has obtained a lease on the grounds just adjoining the former grounds of the Columbia Golf Club and will take its place as one of Washington's country clubs about April 1. Workers are putting the clubhouse into shape for the new occupants, and the golf links and tennis courts are being made ready.

Since its inception, about a month ago, the Washington Suburban Club has enrolled over 20 members. When the members met last Monday to complete the permanent organization of the club there were 12 charter members. Since that time a number have been elected.

The clubhouse and grounds leased to the organization are among the most suitable of country club sites in the vicinity of the Capital. There are located in Georgia Avenue, between Potomac and Wisconsin, the club has been incorporated. The membership is entirely of men, and the privileges of the club are extended to members and their friends.

Special attention is being paid to the golf links of the new organization. There will be among the finest in the suburbs of Washington when the proposed improvements have been completed.

Following are the officers of the club: Henry King, president; D. J. Kaufman, vice president; Morton J. Luchs, secretary; S. H. Fisher, treasurer; Lee Baumgarten, Joseph Devine, Myer Pillsbury, Max Siegel, David Goldenberg, Charles L. Goldsmith, Henry Goodman, Jerome Meyer, Dr. H. M. Kaufman, Phil King, Stuart Lavin, A. D. Marks, Alvin Neimyer, George Nordlinger, John L. Perser, Louis Simon, David A. Baver, and Alexander Wolf. The club will hold a business meeting each year.

BATTLESHIPS ON WAY TO LATIN AMERICA

President Is Determined to Leave Peaceful Condition as Legacy to Successor.

Determined that President-elect Wilson shall find Central America in order when he takes office on March 4, President Taft yesterday directed that American warships be sent at once to cover all the important points on the east and west coast of Central America in order to prevent any outbreak in this most turbulent part of Latin America between now and the end of his administration.

This drastic action was taken by the President as a result of the alarming reports which have been pouring into the State Department from every point in Central America ever since elections in November. The attempted killing of President Araya of Salvador a few days ago strengthened President Taft in his determination that the next administration should not take office with a Central American upheaval on its hands.

It was feared that the attempt on the life of the President of Salvador might prove the signal for the unleashing of all the forces of the professional revolutionists who are known to be plotting a general upheaval after March 4.

Activities on the part of the colony of habitual revolutionists and "emigrados" at New Orleans also served to convince the President that vigorous action was necessary if a general commotion was to be prevented from occurring even before the appointed day, which was to be as soon after March 4 as practicable.

One most important effect of President Taft's order, sending warships to the Central American ports will be to put squarely up to the incoming administration the question of their Latin American policies.

On the morning of March 4 it will be up to Mr. Wilson and his Secretary of State to decide what they are going to do about Central America. They will find American warships stationed at every strategic seaport town on both coasts of Central America. If they leave the ships there after learning the situation which convinced President Taft that their presence was necessary, such a decision will be interpreted as acquiescence in the Taft policy of using United States naval forces to prevent disorderly political upheavals in Central America.

On the other hand, if Mr. Wilson and his Secretary of State decide to withdraw the ships at once, such action will realize the fondest hope of the very men whose intentions President Taft is endeavoring to frustrate by dispatching warships to cover the four most turbulent republics.

PLEADS FOR WOMEN.

Speaker Tells Brookland Citizens of Benefits to Accrue.

Miss Carrie Harrison, in an address before the Brookland Citizens' Association at its meeting in New Masonic Temple, Brookland, explained in detail the objects and the benefits to be derived from suffrage. She pleaded that women be given a voice in school matters and other things in public life allied with the home.

An illustrated lecture, entitled "The Life of a Forester," was given by Eric Adams. Many views, showing Gifford Pinchot, former Chief Forester, performing actual field service, were of especial interest.

Resolutions of condolence in memory of Arthur F. Kinnear, for eight years president of the association, who died January 11, were unanimously adopted, and copies were ordered sent his family. Several business matters of minor importance were discussed. The chairman of the street committee urged the members of the association to exert their efforts toward securing at the present session of Congress as many street improvements as possible. The report of the street car committee on the North Capital Street line service was laid on the table until the next meeting. Marvin McLean, president of the association, presided at the meeting.

Liner Arrives 29 Days Overdue.

Baltimore, Feb. 7.—Twenty-nine days overdue, during which time she was at the mercy of a hurricane that threatened to capsize her, the Hamburg-American liner Assyria reached port to-day. Her lifeboats had been carried away in one of the storms, and several of her passengers were severely injured by flying wreckage. The wind was so strong at times that Capt. Walter Trueman and his officers had to lash themselves to the bridge.

WASHINGTON BOY OFFICER IN MARINES

Vincent E. Stack Passes Examination for Commission—Is High School Graduate.

Vincent E. Stack, of 3421 Fourteenth Street Northwest, was among the successful candidates for commissions as second lieutenants in the Marine Corps, who took the examinations beginning January 7 last. The Navy Department yesterday made public their names.

Young Stack is the son of John E. Stack, who is a United States post-office inspector. He is twenty-two years old, and has lived here the greater part of his life. His early education was obtained in the local graded school. He was graduated at Central High School in the class of 1910. While at Central he took an active part in athletics, and was one of the mainstays of the football team. He was also treasurer of his class and a member of Lambda Sigma fraternity. He served two years in the high school cadets, and it was while a member of that organization that he became ambitious for a military life. Leaving Central, he attended the Georgetown University Law School for two years.

The names of the successful candidates in the order of their standing in the examinations are as follows:

Norman C. Bates, Alameda, Cal.; Douglas B. Rickett, Ridgeway, S. C.; Maurice S. Barry, Philadelphia, Pa.; Harold McLaughlin, Fort Monroe, Va.; John R. Sobres, San Diego, Cal.; Vincent E. Stack, Washington, D. C.; Theodore A. Seer, Los Angeles, Cal.; and Thomas M. Luby, Jersey City, N. J.

SIX HOURS IN WELL.

Schoolboy Prays and Deliverance Follows Soon After.

Six hours imprisonment is hard on even a cat, but harder on a boy who has a boy's appetite. This was the testimony of Edward Forbes, eleven years old, who was caught in the "right well" that supplies the light to the basement of the new normal school. The youngster was passing the away and dropped his transfer card from the Monroe School into the well. He threw off his coat and descended to the bottom of the shaft, only to find himself a prisoner with two half-starved cats that were waiting daily.

This was at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon, and at 8:30 o'clock the boy's father and Dr. Stuart C. Johnson, of Girard Street, found and released him. The lad said he had prayed for aid twice, and that the rescue party arrived at the conclusion of the prayer. It was said last night that he was none the worse for the six hours of cold and hunger.
